

Rowley Company Recognizes National Window Covering Safety Month

Helping to promote awareness of current ANSI standards.

Gastonia, NC – October 1, 2014 – In support of National Window Covering Safety Month, Rowley Company is helping to promote awareness of the American National Standard Institute's (ANSI) safety standards.

Rowley offers ANSI compliant warning tags and labels. The ANS18 warning labels for window coverings with cord shrouds feature a top hole and slit for quick and easy installation. ANS19 warning labels for retail forms and packaging feature a convenient, pressure sensitive adhesive. ANSI requires this warning label to be used on any flyer, advertisement, order sheet, order confirmation or package delivered to the customer with a corded window treatment. View all of our ANSI compliant warning tags and labels at <http://www.rowleycompany.com/prodcat/Warn-Tags-Labels.asp>.

In addition, Rowley has certified three products as compliant to the current ANSI 100.1-2012 Window Covering Safety Standard.

- Sure-Shade™ Universal Drive Tension Device (CT70)
- Sure-Shade™ Encased Lift Cord Shroud Tape (ELC9/, ELC14/)
- Sure-Shade™ Encased Lift Cord Shroud Tube (ELK/, ELK9/, ELK14/)

It should be noted that this certification refers to Rowley encased lift cords and drive tension device only. Rowley recommends that each manufacturer evaluate its own end product assembly for compliance to applicable safety and performance standards in a manner it deems appropriate. Third party certification attained by Rowley will only apply to the Rowley component part. To receive independent certification on the fabricated system, fabricators will need to submit their finished products for third party testing. To learn more about how to keep your products in compliance, view the current standards at www.windowcoverings.org.
